Continuing a legacy of giving

Family, education, sports and a dedication to service seem to sum up the most important things to a man who gave of his time and resources to make his community a better place.

The family of H. Grady Moore Jr. honors his legacy by establishing an endowed scholarship in his memory. The H. Grady Moore Jr. Memorial Scholarship was created in December 2007 by an initial donation from Nancy Moore and Henry G. Moore III. Female athletes who are enrolled full-time with at least a 2.0 GPA are eligible.

Recently, with additional donations from Adelia "Dee" Moore Smith, Curtis W. Moore, and Reed S. Moore, the scholarship reached the $25,000 endowment mark and is now named the H. Grady Moore Jr. Memorial Endowed Scholarship.

"He wanted to change the future to help students be successful at PHCC," said Nancy, H. Grady Moore's daughter-in-law. "Grady believed in education and innovation, and he wanted others to know the value, both educational and financial, of attending PHCC."

Sports, the entire family agreed, was more than a hobby for H. Grady Moore Jr. – it was a passion.

"He was an avid sportsman," Nancy said. "He loved to see his children and grandchildren play. There were times that I would tell one of our children we can't do another sport, and poppa would say 'I'll take them.' Even though he was passionate, he would always say that academics came before the athletics."

His son, Henry G. Moore III, said his family has really embraced his father's ideals when it comes to the importance of education.

"Dad was always supportive of everything we did growing up, Henry said. "That also carried over to all his civic involvements. If he was supportive and involved in it, he did whatever he could to make it successful."

Reed, the brother of H. Grady Moore Jr., operated Service Printing Co. with his brother until their retirement in 1995. "Our father was well-known throughout the community for his service," he said. "That's something Grady passed on to his family. He would be very proud to see how this scholarship is helping students."

His wife Dee said both she and Grady took classes at PHCC and supported the PHCC Foundation in its inception.

"He absolutely loved his job, and he stayed involved in his community," she said. "I tried to support him in all endeavors and passions, which included PHCC."

H. Grady Moore Jr. helped to organize the PHCC Foundation, then named the PHCC Educational Foundation, and served on its board of directors from 1981-1986.

Where Are They Now?

Teaching the next generation

Sgt. Maj. Mike Payne, PHCC Alumnus

SgtMaj Mike Payne, USMC (Ret.), a Patrick Henry Community College alumnus, was named this past summer as Hargrave Military Academy's Commandant of Cadets.

SgtMaj Payne brings years of professional leadership and educational experience to the Hargrave Commandant position. Hargrave's Commandant is the senior leader focused on the advancement and development of the Academy's Corps of Cadets.

He provides direction, guidance and discipline for the young men attending the school.

"SgtMaj Payne knows Hargrave, its rules and regulations. He is well versed with Hargrave's military system, its task, purpose and the end game for our young men," BG Don Broome (USA Ret.), Hargrave's President said. "Additionally, he is an outstanding leader, educator and mentor. During his 17-year tenure at Hargrave, he has consistently demonstrated that he holds all Cadets to the same high standard while simultaneously being concerned with the growth and development of the individual. He's going to do an outstanding job as Commandant, for our young men and for Hargrave!"

SgtMaj Payne is a native of the Martinsville and Henry County area of Virginia. He is a retired military veteran with 30 years service in the U. S. Marine Corps. He joined Hargrave November 1997. During that time, he has excelled at a number of roles, including: TAC (Teacher-Advisor-Counselor) Officer (Golf Company, serving the Academy's postgraduates); college counselor; Test Center Supervisor; Faculty advisor; and Hargrave Honor Council Faculty Advisor.

Payne holds a Masters degree in Counseling and Human Relations from Liberty University, a Bachelor's degree in Criminal Justice from Averett University, and an Associate's degree in Criminal Justice from Patrick Henry Community College.

Payne is married to Linda H. Payne of Martinsville, Virginia, where they reside. They have one grown daughter, Lynette Payne. He is an avid sports fan and lifelong learner.
